French songs. These expressing with the bright and cheerful mood, full of subdued melody, were presented in a most artistic manner and were charming in every detail. Mrs. Sheppard had perfect poise and grace and showed the mastery of her art.

That isn't all the article said, but it is enough to give an idea of Mrs. Sheppard's voice.

The President's health appears to be improving rapidly to the joy of the whole world. He got out into the sunshine for a while a few times last week, which seemed to help him greatly. A little bird told me he is getting strong and is ready to give the Senate a real stiff fight on this vague of nations proposition. There is lots of work ahead of the poor man.

Six Presidential appointments, two of them to fill Cabinet vacancies and four of special interest to Washington, are awaiting action of President Wilson, and it is thought probable that nominations for all of these places will be sent to the Senate shortly after it meets December 1. No intimation as to whether any interim appointments would be made was given at the White House.

The appointment of a District Commissioner to succeed Commissioner W. Gwynn Gardner, who desires to resume his law practice, and three members of the new cabinet, a new body created by the Congress just adjourned to adjust relations between landlords and tenants in the District. The rent commissioners will draw salaries of $3,000 a year.

The cabinet vacancies are a Secretary of the Treasury to succeed Secretary Carter Glass, who is leaving to accept a seat in the Senate, succeeding Senator Martin of Virginia, and a Secretary of Commerce, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Secretary William C. Redfield, November 1.

The impression is gaining ground that the successor to Mr. Glass will be some person now in the Treasury Department. Names of such men who have been suggested include Assistant Secretary R. C. Leffingwell, ranking official in Mr. Glass' absence; Assistant Secretary Joseph Shouse, whose appointment is urged by many persons from the middle west; Charles H. Hamilton, member of the Federal Reserve Board and its former chairman; Daniel C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue; John Burke, treasurer of the United States, and John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency.

FINNY STORY.

I heard an amusing story the other day about the President; it was in a London paper. A story of President Wilson's reception of the last German note before the signing of the peace treaty was told by Sir George Riddle, says the Newpaper World, at a dinner at Haylake in connection with the Press golf competition.

Sir Maurice Hankey, he said, took the note to President Wilson at 5 o'clock in the morning. The President got out of bed and invited Sir Maurice into his bed-room.

and wounded. And they say her stitches were so fine that never did one show through the wrong side. Isn't that remarkable?

The American Woman's Legion has as its objects patriotic, educational and memorial; to uphold the ideals of true Americanism; to help eliminate illiteracy from our land; to collect and preserve historical records of women's work in the war, and to aid in memorial work for our fallen heroes; to assist the government in every way possible in ameliorating the condition of our maimed and wounded soldiers of the Great War by giving them all possible inspiration and encouragement, by establishing a loan fund for the wounded to interest, to establish a fund to aid and help educate American war orphans who may be in need of special assistance; to use concerted effort bringing down the high cost of living.

Through stimulating exercise, members will become the most effective instruments for the accomplishment of the varied tasks the exacting world is setting for women today. Instruction will be provided in the use of the ballot and in the art of citizenship. The Legion is non-political and non-sectarian.

The membership of the American Woman's Legion shall consist of gold star wearers, women who served under the colors, and relatives of veterans of the great war, i. e., wives, mothers, sisters, daughters and those officially next of kin to either men or women who served under the colors. This membership will hold together in a sacred bond those women who gave most and suffered most in the greatest war of all time.

There are annual dues of $1 a year from each member, payable on November 11, in commemoration of Victory Day. Half the local dues are sent to the State treasurer, who shall, in turn, send half of the State fund to the national treasurer to be used in the sacred bond work of the Legion. One dollar a year is paid by each member or by one in each family for a year's subscription to The A. W. L. official publication of the American Woman's Legion. This magazine is owned and published by the Legion for the good of its members and to serve as a means of instruction in the aims and ideals of the Legion, as well as being a historical record of women's work in the great war.

The main object of the American Woman's Legion is to "stand behind the men who stood behind the guns that won the war."

WRITTEN IN CALIFORNIA.

Early this month the Oakland (Cal.) Enquirer ran this article: "A telegram has just been received from the national headquarters of the American Woman's Legion, Mather Building, Washington, D. C., congratulating and welcoming the California Legion, the pioneer Women's Legion of the United States, and the first to join the ranks of legions now forming throughout America. The telegram stated that a national membership campaign was under way in Washington."

It is intended that the American Woman's Legion will become a meeting place for the various war women's organizations springing up all over the country, and that eventually they will all be united under one organization, and in union gain strength.

"Since the American Woman's Legion was organized one year before the service men's legion was formed, it is considered desirable to retain their original name, but to all intents and purposes to become the official auxiliary of the American Legion, since membership in the A. W. L. is limited to relatives of service men, gold star women, and the women who served under the colors. To this end a resolution will be offered at the coming national convention of the American Legion in Minneapolis, November 11, 12, and 13, memorializing the Legion to unite its forces with that of the American Woman's Legion, to the strengthening of both organizations."

The American Woman's Legion is planning to issue the first number of its official magazine, "The A. W. L.," at an early date. This magazine will have the subtitle, "The Magazine With a Punch," and it will serve to punch openings for women to keep "pecking away" until conditions in our country are more desirable for the men who offered their lives in the defense of our country. Also it will serve as a historical record of women's work in the great war. The magazine will be published from headquarters in Washington.

The main object of the American Woman's Legion is to "stand behind the men who stood behind the guns that won the war."

One of the ways in which they will do this is by establishing a loan fund for the wounded, already started by Miss Byrd Mock, founder of the A. W. L., who has donated a thousand copies of her Indian romance, "The Maid of Pend d'Oreille," to the Legion for this purpose. The book is already known all over the world, and has been given an honored place in many libraries in Europe. It reflects the real spirit of the old wild west.

Mrs. A. W. Mayor of the Compton Apartments, Oakland, is chairman of this Loan Fund for the Wounded, and she has recently resigned the State presidency in order to devote her entire energies to the interests of the wounded soldiers.

Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, of Los Angeles, former president of the League of American Pen Women, was elected the new State president of the California A. W. L. to succeed Mrs. Mayor. Mrs. Heustis' husband, Dr. James Walter Heustis, served in the medical corps of the United States army during the great war.

Mrs. Mayor had three sons in the late war, the youngest of whom, George, went over the top four times. Mrs. Mayor is the champion war knitter, and without doubt holds the world championship in this line, since she knitted over 2,000 garments for soldiers, including 385 sweaters during the four years of the war.

The California Women's Legion has responded to this call by staging a beautiful lyric pantomime, "Mirella," a pageant of the returning refugees with the scene laid in the Argonne forest, showing the gallant part played by the American soldiers in the final catastrophe over there.

The play was written by Miss Anna Mollers, a talented member of the Legion, now living in Oakland. The play will be given in the Ebell Club, Oakland, December 19 and 20.

and will have a little Christmas scene for the refugee children. Mrs. Mayor, the champion war knitter, will play the part of a refugee mother who knits constantly for her warrior sons, thus giving the public a chance to see her wonderful skill in knitting.

NEWS OF SIR IAN MALCOLM.

Sir Ian Malcolm—of course you remember him—who had the refusal of the office of consul general of Great Britain in New York, has now accepted the extremely agreeable, well-paid and not particularly strenuous post of resident British government director in Paris of the Suez Canal Company.

Some 6 per cent of the stock in the concern belongs to the British government, which acquired it through purchase from Khedive Ismail some 43 years ago. It was at a moment when he was hard pressed for ready money, and he literally jumped on the $30,000 paid down by Premier Lagrange Beaufort overnight for what were his founder shares.

Sir Ian is indebted for the handle to his name to his recent advancement to the rank of a knight commander of the Order of St. Michael and George for his services as private secretary to Arthur Balfour throughout the nearly 10 months spent by that statesman and former premier at Paris in connection with the peace conference.

He accompanied Balfour to the United States in the same capacity in 1917, and before that had done such splendid Red Cross work in Russia that the ill-fated Czar Nicholas before his deposition accorded him the honorary rank of major general in the Muscovite army. He is very happily married to Jeanne Lagrange, only daughter of Lady de Balhe.
